IT WILL REASSEMBLE TO-MOR-ROW, BUT MAY ADJOURN SOON.

Little Likelihood that the Rill Abolishts Lay Judges in the County Courts and Making the Law Judges Elective By the People Will Be Put Through, TRENTON, Sept. 30,-On Tuesday the Legislature will reconvene to finish the session that was adjourned at 4 o'clock on the morning of Saturday, May 26. Senator Voorhees's bill, abolishing the present appointive lay and law Judges of the County Courts, and providing for law Judges only, to be elected by the people, was what made the long night session necessary, and it is the only one for which there is any urgency now. It, with Thompson's Marriage License bill, the bill annexing Kearny and Harrison to Essex county, and two others, are in the Governor' hands and will be returned with vetoes when the session is resumed. Senator Voorbees has been anxious to put his pet measure through, but apparently has been called off by the leaders, who are fearful of being entrapped by the Democrats into voting down cheap gas, cheaper tion bills. This would have a bad effect on the campaign, and word has been passed around that the session will meet and at once adjourn A cancus will be held by the Republicans to morrow night or Tuesday morning to reach a

One section of the Voorbees bill provides that it shall go into effect on Oct. 1, and an amendment would be necessary before it could be passed. This would require several days' time. The Governor would naturally hold it for the five days permitted by the Constitution, and it would require at least four more days to pass it over the yeto. This would take till near Nov. 1, and in the mean time there would have been introduced many bills that the Republicans fear to meet just now.

Another objection to action on the Voorhees bill is that it would probably be defeated. It passed by a bare majority in May, and that only passed by a bare majority in May, and that only after sergeants-at-arms had bunted up absentees. Assemblymen Lewis, Coursen, Zabriskie, and Rosa, Republicans, voted against it, and have not changed their views. Besides, Stecher of Burlington and Watson of Camdon, having been turned down for renomination, are naturally sore, and cannot be counted on. Holt of Passale resigned to accept a riparian commissionership, Burton of Ocsan resigned to accept the assistant superintendency of the Capitol, and Walters of Monmouth is dead. This leaves but 36 Republican members, four of whom are on record against the bill, and at least two more doubtful. Then the lay Judges have organized during the recess and will make a fight if necessary. In the Schate, where the Republicans have a bare majority of one, Skirm of Mercer is opposed to it. He declared on the floor of the House during the ali-night assistent that he would defeat it in the Senate if it ever came up there again.

The opinion is therefore expressed that the Legislature will receive the vetoes and take no action, and that after the Senate had confirmed a few nominations to be made by the Governor it will adjourn on Tuesday afternoon or Wednesday morning, and permit the Assemblymen to return home and fight for renomination, as the battle is now going on all over the State. All the eleven Republican Senators hold over.

In the Assembly fights an effort is being made to preven the renomination of some of last year's Republican accidents, particularly those who are not straight on the United States Senatorship question. Lewis of Passaic, who is one of the leaders, has been switched off after the Congress nomination. It is said the turning down of Stecher of Burlington was due to A. P. On Tuesday there is to be a conference of leading Democratis here with the Executive Committee of the Democratic Society of New Jersey. In the invitations sent out for the conference, Secretary McKean says:

"Never before in the history of our party have contingencies like those of the present arisen to test the loyalty of our people. The results of the coming elections will mark either an era of continued prosperity to the State and national Democracy or one of endiess defeat.

"Are you willing to sid in doing further battle for tariff reform and a government of the people, or are you ready to give up the fight so ably led by our fearless President and the national House of Representatives and return to the rule of tariff oppression and monopolistic ideas? If our party is defeated this campaign, it will be due in the main to inactivity and indifference upon the part of men who should be in the front rank. Great strides have been made in the direction of tariff reform and economical government, but much more yet remains to be accomplished."

WATER POWER FOR OMAHA. The Water to Be Brought Through

OMARA, Sept. 30.-The County Commissioners have decided to submit to the people a proposition to vote $1,000,000 subsidy to a company for to Omaha. The design is to create a great water power just outside the city limits to be brought into the city in the shape of electrical energy and sold at a uniform price to all factories. The rates will be cheaper than the charge for water power in Minneapolis and other water power power in Minneapolis and other water power centres. The water is to be procured from the Platte River, forty miles from Omaha, and from the Elkhorn River, twenty miles away, and will be carried through a canal to a point near the city limits where a fall amounting to 135 feet will be secured. At this point there will be developed 24,000 horse power. Here an electrical plant will be established and the power developed will be brought into Omaha and distributed.

The people are expected to vote these bonds by a person and order to the control of the control

The people are expected to vote these bonds by a large majority, as there is practically no opposition, and a million dollars is considered a small amount to give for securing the advantages of such cheap power for manufacturing purposes. The whole enterprise will cost four million dollars, and the company undertaking it is composed of the richest men in Nebraska.

Mrs. Bok is a sister of Mrs. Talmage, the wife of the Rev. Br. Talmage, and the latter officiated at the marriage, which took place in January, 1893. Mr. Bok and his bride went to live at 259 Lafayette avenue, but in less than a year they gave up housekeeping, and they have since lived apart. Mrs. Bok is now living with relatives in McDonough street. Efforts, it is said, have been made to bring about a reconciliation, but with no success. No legal steps have yet been taken on either side.

Three hours later the servant, in answering a ring of the door bell, was sur-prised to see the same man standing on the steps. By a little subterfuge the fellow was kept in conversation until a policeman could be summoned. When he realized the situation he said: "Well, that's a fine mistake for me to make." make."

He admitted his guilt, and was held for trial yesterday in the Yorkville Police Court.

Robbed in Gramercy Park.

While Harry Leland of 40 West Twenty-ninth street was going through Gramercy Park, on Twenty-first street, at 11 o'clock last Monday night a man accosted him and courteously asked what time it was. Mr. Leland took out his what time it was. Mr. Leland took out his watch, and quick as a flash the man grabbed it and ran away. By the light of the street lamps, however, Mr. Leland had recognized the thief as a man with whom he had had several drinks earlier in the evening. He reported his leas to the police, and kept a sharp leokeout for the footpad. On Saturday night he caught sight of him at Twenty-sixth street and Third avenue, and, calling a policeman, caused his arcres. The prisoner gave his name as Henry J. Jenkins. He said he was a clark, but refused his address. Jenkins was arraigned; in the Yorkville Court yesterday and remanded by Justice Meade until to-day.

The parish was organized in 1887, and, on Oct. 5, 1885, the certain stone of the present edifice was THE THIEVES WERE EMPLOYEES. Three Colored Men Systematically Rob the Essex Lead Works.

For several years three colored employees of the Essex Lead Works in Newark have been systematically robbing their employers of plumbing material and selling it to Newark plumbers. They were arrested on Thursday night, but the details of the stor; were not made public until yesterday. Mr. Frank Kellogg, the head of the concern, knew that the place was being robbed and that at least $5,000 worth of stock had mysteriously disappeared in the last three years, but he did not suspect his employees, and was mystified by the losses which were constantly being discovered. It was not until Sept. 10 that the men were suspected, and then the information came from a customer who had been approached by the porter of the store, Luther Murray of 97 William street, who had worked for the company many years. Cohen & Bridgeford, plumbers, of 412 Broad street, sent a boy to the lead him not to ask for the solder, but to take the next day. Mr. Bridgeford was surprised when the boy made this report, but he was still more surprised next day when Murray brought him fifty pounds of solder, worth nine or ten cents a pound and offered it for four cents. Mr. Bridgeford bought it and had a talk with Murray, who told him that he could sell him any kind of supplies for about a quartr of the market price if he would keep quiet about the matter. Murray told Mr. Bridgeford that he and William Fraser, a driver for the firm, and Anthony Hall, the stock clerk, were running a little independent husiness of their own, and that a number of prominent plumbers were their customers. He offered bathtubs, kitchen bollers, sinks, traps, pipe, fittings, and all sorts of heavy and light plumbers' material at ridiculously low prices. Mr. Bridgeford gave him an order and then sought Mr. Hoover, the manager of the lead company, to whom he told the story.

Mr. Hoover requested Mr. Bridgeford to go on dealing with Murray and to help him to entrap the trio of thieves. The next afternoon Mr. Hoover was concealed in Cohen & Bridgeford's store, and at 5 o'clock Murray dropped in. After looking around he went out, and returned a lew minutes later with the goods Mr. Bridgeford had ordered. The value of the articles was fully $50, but Murray took $5 for them. This was repeated on ensuing days, and finally Mr. Bridgeford, undered goods worth $2,000, for which he agreed to pay $252. Mr. Hoover heard the bargain made, and saw the goods delivered.

Then came the planning to get all three of the culprits at once. Mr. Hoover suggested to Mr. Bridgeford that this could easily be accomplished, and on Wednesday last the latter told Murray that he heard that his companions were dissatisfied and refused to pay any more money to Murray alone.

"Bring your friends with you at 6 o'clock to-morrow evening and I will not the bargain was and in the bargain of the surprise of the company and I will not the bargain was and in the part of the bargain was and saw the goods delivered. the boy made this report, but he was still m surprised next day when Murray brought him

This seemed reasonable to Murray, and on the following evening Murray, Hall, and Frazer walked into the trap, and were arrested by officers in waiting. They had nothing to say until next day, when they confessed and gave the names of a number of plumbers who had been buying goods from them. These names the police will not reveal, but they have recovered a large amount of the plunder, they say. Murray said it was easy to get goods out of the store. Sometimes the stolen stuff was concealed in the stable during the day, and delivered late

DR. CUNNINGHAM TOOK POISON. His Death Not Caused By Heart Disease

Dr. Robert Seffrine Cunningham, the Nutley druggist, who died suddenly on Saturday in Dr. George B. Philhower's office at that place, did not die of heart disease as was at first supposed. He had taken poison. This was announced after midnight on Saturday by County Physician Daniel Elliott of Newark, who, with Dr. Harrision, spent the evening in making an autopsy Dr.s Elliott and Harrison made the examin tion in the presence of Dr. Philhower. who was a warm friend of Dr. Cunningham. They first discovered a strong odor of concentrated ammonia and observed that the throat, intestines, and stomach were much shriveled. There was no food in the stomach, and upon opening it the doctors detected a strong odor of oil of tansy. They were convinced that the oil of tansy had been taken first and the ammonia either as an antiningham's mouth and one check were burned by the ammonia. He had no chance to explain anything to Dr. Philhower before he fell in convulsions.

anything to Dr. Philhower before he fell in convulsions.

Dr. Philhower was out when Dr. Cunningham called at his house. When Dr. Philhower returned he was accompanied by a man who wanted a tooth pulled. Dr. Cunningham was then sitting in the office, and looked wan and dejected. Dr. Philhower requested him to wait in the parlor for him, and he then pulled the patient's tooth. When he went to the parlor to join Dr. Cunningham he found the latter writhing in convulsions upon the floor. Dr. Philhower quickly ran to his cabinet for a remedy, and when he returned a moment later Dr. Cunningham was dying. He was dead in less than five minutes.

was dying. He was dead in less than five minutes.

Dr. Cunningham was 31 years old. He studied medicine in this city under Drs. Loomis and Parker, but he relinquished practice because of delicate health, and in 1881 took charge of Dr. Seffrine Daily's drug store in Nutley, and finally succeeded Dr. Daily in business.

Dr. Cunningham was tax collector of the township of Franklin from 1888 until last year, when another man was elected. At the same time a new and fine drug store was opened in Nutley and attracted away considerable of his trade. He was well to do and lived with his parents, being unmarried. His health was poor, and was still weakened by the effects of a severe attack of the acute influenza which was prevalent three years ago. None of his friends knew that he was giving way to despondency, however, and nobody suspected him of suicidal intent.

COL. ROBINSON ON HIS FEET AGAIN.

He Regains Complete Possession and Control of His Great Properties in Elmira. ELMIRA, Sept. 30.-There is general rejoicing over the statement made by Col. D. C. Robinson of this city that there has been complete restoration to his possession and control of the great properties which he was compelled to assign in May, 1893, for the protection of creditors. Col. Robinson claimed all the time that he was solvent, and the assignee, H. C. Mandeville, also so reported. The Colonel now says that the restoration is the result of a con-tract entered into in New York on Saturday evening by himself and some strong financial institutions.

tract entered into in New York on Saturday evening by himself and some strong financial institutions.

Col. Robinson inherited a large estate from his father, the late ex-Gov. Lucius Robinson, and had amassed a large property of his own, and had amassed a large property of his own, and had amassed a large property of his own, in the consolidation of the companies owning the warious municipal franchises into the Elmira Municipal Improvement Company and the improvement of these properties he had advanced large sums, and the coming of the panic of 1803 rendered it difficult to carry the enterprise. Hence the assignment. By the amicable arrangement above referred to these obligations, the Colonel says, have all been taken up and Col. Robinson's estate restored to complete solvency. The assignee will be discharged as soon as proper papers can be perfected.

Col. Robinson enjoyed the esteem of the citizens of Elmira in a marked degree, and having keen a centre of enterprise, it is hoped and expected that his resumption of business will greatly add to the city prosperity. Col. Robinson's was the first great estate to become embarrassed and is the first to resume active business. It is believed it has not suffered serious loss, and that he resumes without material diminution of his resources.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Sept 30.-At 3 o'clock this morning flames were discovered in three places in the large grain warehouse of Runyon Bros. at 229 Burnet street. By the time the alarm was given the entire building was in fiames.

In less than an hour it was entirely destroyed with its contents, as was also the stable adjoining. Seven horses were burned, one of which was a trotting horse valued at $2,300, the property of P. P. Runyon. The loss on the buildings and contents is estimated at $2,000. The fire was doubtless of incendiary origin.

The Celebration Will Not Be Cloned Until To-morrow Morning - Sney Scenes in the Jewish Quarter Streets and Syna-gogues Even More Crowded than Usuni. The celebration of the Jewish New Year be gan late yesterday afternoon among the ortho-dox Russian, German, and Polish Jews who inhabit a large part of the east side of town. To-day is really the first of the Jewish year, but in secordance with the Mosaic law it began yesterday at sunset, which occurred about 5:30 P. M. The Jewish year begins with the first day of the month of Tishri, which happens this year to coincide with the first of the Christian month of October. There is no connection between the wo calendars, however, and the Jewish New Year is a movable event, like Easter. Last year t came on Sept. 10. New Year's Day is a great occasion with the orthodox. As a holiday it ocruples much the same place that Christmas solds among Christians. Gifts are exchanged, and everybody goes in for a good time.

The streets of the Jewish quarter are the most rowded in the city at any time, but on the great holiday the outpouring surpasses all other occasions. Apparently no one at all remains indoors. Women with bables in their arms and eading other young children by the hands push their way about among the crowds of men. Children are swarming everywhere. It is almost impossible to tell where sidewalk leaves off and pavement begins, for they are equally covered with masses of humanity. The liveliest place in the quarter yesterday was Hester street in the vicinity of Essex. The niddle of the street for several blocks was filled with a long line of petty merchants with their goods and with eager groups of purchasers, goods and with eager groups of purchasers. Nobody paid any attention to the shops, many of which were closed, but every one seemed anxious to buy in the street. There were stands where the Talmud and the New Year's service, neatly printed in Hebrew and bound in bright cloth, could be bought for a few cents. The service is so long that it makes a good-sized book in itself. Most of the dealers, however, did not rise to the dignity of a stand or pushcart, but carried their wares in their hands, over their arms, or around their necks, according to the nature of the goods. There were numbers of men who sold the large and apparently unmalleable hunks of bread which form the staple diet of the east side Hebrews. These were offered at four and five cents and were handed about among the intending purchasers for inspection. Those that were not sold came back to the dealer uninjured, except that a little of the gile had been rubbed off. Then there were dealers with shoes, suspenders, coats, trousers, handkerchiefs, and underwear. Of course, all of these things were bought without the privilege or the possibility of trying them on.

For about an hour this market rushed and surged, and the dealers shouted inducements to purchase in German and Yiddish and occasionally even in English, for the east-side Jew is nothing if not a polyglot.

At 6 o'clock there was a sudden cessation of all this bustle. The venders disappeared in a twinkling. The time had come to attend the first part of the New Year services, and the streets quickly became quiet, but not deserted.

From all directions came the short, full-bearded Jews with the characteristic ill-fitting frock coats, and in most cases antiquated high hats. Under their arms they carried the new prayer books carefully wrapped in red bandanna hand kerchiefs or enclosed in cloth bags. A good many more men than women went to the synagogues.

many more men than women went to the synagogues.

The services on the first evening last only an hour and a haif. They are chanted, almost sung, out of the prayer book by one of the rabbis, and the congregation chants the responses. As he reads, the rabbi sways rapidly backward and forward, and this congregation follows the example only a little less violently. In Essex, Hester, Norfolk, and Clinton streets and in East Broadway there are many synagogues and they were all filled yesterday. To make an east side synagogue it is only necessary for a congregation to hire a floor in a tenement house. In some cases a few bits of red and blue glass are put in the windows to add an ecclesiastical effect. Often there are two or more congregations in the same building. No less than three services were in progress last night, one above the other, in a Norfolk street tenement. From the sidewalk all the congregations could be plainly seen at once through the windows, and their chanting made itself heard for a block around.

There was little relebrating after the services and their chanting made user head around.

There was little celebrating after the services were over. A few bonfires were lighted, but most of the faithful went to bed early, that they might arise in time for to-day's continuation of the services, which begin at 6 A.M. and last continuously until half past 1. There will be more services to-night and to-morrow morning, when the celebration will be brought to a close and the new year will have been fairly begun.

ITALIANS WAGE WAR ON NEGROES The Latter Espoused an Irish Boy's Quar-rel-A Negro Mortally Wounded.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Sept. 30 .- A gang of Italians attempted to clear out all the negroes in Peters town late last night, and one of them perhaps mortally wounded Anthony Hall, an inoffensive colored man, aged 50. An Irish lad named Rob ert Lindsey got into a fight with an Italian named Rocci Rieca at John street and Third avenue about 11 o'clock. down a picket fence on John street and began to belabor the fighters. Frank Hall had his shoulder smashed in the fracas, and then the negroes started to run. The Italians chased them down John street.

While the chase was on Anthony Hall came along Third avenue and stopped to see what the row was about. Just then several Italians came running up John street. One of them had a stilletto in his hand. When he reached the corner where Hall was standing the Italian plunged the weapon into Hall's abdomen and then into his hip. Hall hurried home and later went out to find a policeman. He finally walked to the hospital a mile away. The surgeons had recourse to laparotomy in hopes of saving his life, but his wound is believed to be mortal.

A squad of police which was sent to Peterstown succeeded in dispersing the Italians just as they were on their way to a tenement inhabited by colored families. Four of the gang were arrested. They gave their names as Frank Ucelia, Frank Skoneita, Antonio Tonero, and Rocci Rieca. They were taken before Anthony Hall, at the hospital, this morning, and he identified Ucelia as the man who stabbed him. County Physician O'Reilly took Hall's ante-mortem statement this afternoon.

VISITING THE FRENCH SQUADRON. Music and Duncing on the Fingship Enter-tained the Visitors.

There was jollity yesterday aboard the three French training ships anchored in the North River. The Nalade, flagship of the squadron, which is known as a "flying division of instruction, received more visitors than the Rigault de Genouilly and the Nielly. The Nafade's band played merrily from 2 until 3:30 o'clock, and the young blue ackets danced and sang to the melodies. When the band stopped a sailorman brought out an accordion, ensounced himself on the raised platform of a rapid-fire gun, and blazed musically away, and inspired his shipmates with renewed activity of hoel and toe. There were many visitors to the ship, especially to the Nalade, and a large proportion of them were from our French colony.

That the young fellows on the flagship live well is attested by six lambs penned in the port side of the deck and a large coop filled with chickens opposite. The men said they had roast lamb every day.

Visitors are allowed aboard the ships every day until 5 P. M. The ships probably will leave here for the Azores on Saturday. brought out an accordion, ensconced himself on

The fires had day night was a night of terror. The fires had eaten their way into the city limits, and a fierce gale was blowing the flames directly toward the residence portion of the city. Hundreds were fighting the flames all night, and every one was awake and anxious. The smoke was dense, and the red glare of the angry flames forcibly reminded the residents of the Hinckley disaster. Scores of farmers have been birned out in this district. Many coming into the city have lost all but the clothing on their backs.

Now on the Way to the Posteur Institute A Copperhead Caught at Fort Lee, Some time ago THE SUN told of the arrival in New York of a large Kentucky rattlesnake, conigned to Mr. S. S. McClure of 30 Lafayette place, in transit to Dr. Calmette of the Pastent natitute, Paris, who is making investigations as to a method of preventing death from snake ite by inoculation with a culture of the venom. Since his anakeship's arrival in New York he has been cared for by Mr. G. R. O'Reilly of the Royal Zoological Society of Ireland, who is over here for the special purpose of studying the life history of our American snakes, of which he has a large living collection. Much difficulty was experienced in finding a person going direct to Paris who would consent to take charge of was experienced in finding a person going direct to Paris who would consent to take charge of the rattler.

On Saturday, however, Mr. O'Reilly succeeded in sending off his charge in the custody of Dr. P. L. Marion of the steamship La Teuraine, who promised to keep the snake comfortable on his voyage and to see him safely delivered into the hands of Dr. Calmette himself. The reptile has his quarters in the Doctor's cabin, and is safely enclosed in a stout wooden box well nailed up on every side and provided with minute gimlet holes to allow the entrance of air and water. As for food, he will require none on the voyage, but he will get water every two or three days. The reptile is very large for his species, and is in prime condition, so that it is to be haped he will be satsfactory to the savants of the Institut Pasteur.

As soon as a reply is received telling of the safe arrival of the rattler Mr. O'Reilly will send to the Parisian savant a splendid specimen of the copperhead, a real Trigomocephalus confortire, caught by himself about a week ago on the Palisades, near Fort Lee. Many persons will be surprised to learn that such dangerous snakes, near relatives of the terrible West Indian Fer de Lance, exist so close to the city of New York. Mr. O'Reilly has caught alive in that same district not less than four in the last two weeks, One of these is more than three feet in length, which is much beyond the average size of the copperhead. The forest lands of Englewood along the Palisades are famous for copperheads, but in spite of their number they are rarely seen on account of their brownish and reddish markings, which harmonize wonderfully with the withered leaves that strew the ground beneath the trees.

OUR LADY OF LOURDES HONORED Crowning of Her Statue in Francis de Sale's

The crowning of a statue of Our Lady of Lourdes at St. Francis de Sales's Roman Catholic Church at Broadway and Fairfax street Brooklyn, last night, was made the occasion for grand ceremonies. The Rev. Father E. H. Porcile, the pastor of the church, led a large party of pilgrims from Brooklyn to France last summer to pay devotions and render votive offerings at the Lourdes shrine. The crown which ings at the Lourdes shrine. The crown which was placed upon the statue last night was a fac-simile to that on the Lourdes statue which was presented in 1876 by the Holy Father.

The statue in St. Francis de Sales's Church stands at the right of the altar, in a grotto similar to that in which the Lourdes statue stands. Most of the pilgrims who accompanied Father Porclie to France were present last night, and the fifteen decades of the rosary were said. One hundred and seventy young women and girls made responses. Father Porcile conducted the service, and in a brief address urged those present to live up to the precepts of the Church. He referred to the miraculous cures effected by the intercession of Our Lady of Lourdes, and exhorted his hearers to take to heart the lessons hereby inculcated.

AT "SUNSET" COX'S GRAVE.

Monument to Be Erected at a Cost of One Cent from Each Letter Carrier, The members of Brooklyn Branch 41 of the National Association of Letter Carriers yesterday afternoon commemorated the birthday of the late S. S. Cox by decorating his grave in Greenwood Cemetery with flowers. About fifty of them met at the Brooklyn Post Office and marched to the cemetery. Peter F. Ralph. President of the branch, gave a short address, n which he said that "Sunset" Cox had been a true friend to letter carriers, by having their salaries restored from $800 to $1,000 a year, by introducing a law giving them fifteen days' vacation every year, and in having their working hours reduced from twelve and fourteen hours a day to eight hours. Hamilton street stables, and the drivers, as soon as they knew that there was a strike, went back. The meeting spent the time discussing how Commissioner Andrews could be seen or heard from. It was declared that he was not to be seen by committees or heard from by letter. It was finally resolved that the drivers will report for work to-day and give Mr. Andrews until Wednesday night to be seen or heard from. If by that time there is no word from him, the entire organization will parade until he is found. They will start on Thursday, with no fixed route, but it will be a go-as-you-please affair, and they say they will go on parading if it should take a week to find him. At the meeting of the Central Federation yesterday a letter was read from Commissioner Andrews in reply to a complaint that the streets were very dirty. The letter said that the present condition resulted from a severe storm and the strike of the men on the Barney Company's scows. The low death rate of the city, the letter said, showed how well the sanitary rules were observed. A NEW FLYING MACHINE. It Is the Invention of a Market Gardener in SARATOGA, Sept. 30.-Oscar F. Lewis, a market gardener, living in the near suburbs of this village, has for the past three years been ex-perimenting with and perfecting a flying machine, and now claims that he has constructed an apparatus by which he can soar into the air and apparatus by which be can soar into the air and move about at his will. By means of it Mr. Lewis has made a number of ascensions, varying from 300 to more than 1,000 feet. The machine is kept in the air by gas, and is propelled by a bicycle arrangement with a revolving fanshaped attachment. The machine was sent to Stearns & Co., manufacturers, of Syracuse, who experimented with it and found that the apparatus was scientifically constructed. Mr. Lewis says he will soon give a public trial of his machine for aerial navigation.

Nothing more was seen of the man until 11 o'clock yesterday, when a noise as of some one falling heavily brought the other inmates of the house to the new boarder's room. It was full of gas, and the man lay unconscious by the door, which he had managed to parily open before he was overcome by the gas. He was removed to the Harlem Hospital.

Mrs. Burlingaine does not know the man's name, but some pawn tickets were found in his room, all bearing the name "J. Martin."

the country and lay water pipes cut to it to help them impose upon you, when $3,000 or $4,000 would provide all that was needed. But let the infamy go on."

The speaker turned his attention uext to national affairs. After some words in commendation of the Wilson Tariff bill, he explained the causes which delayed its passage so long. He regretted the fact that the name of New Jersey figured in the story, and that one of her Senators was guilty of the perfluy and dishoner with which, he said, the President rightly charged them. With a sudden outburst of enthusiasm he swung his arms upward and almost shouted:

"You voters ought to rise as one man and do something to avenge the betrayal of Gov. Leon

"You voters ought to rise as one man and do something to average the betrayal of Gov. Leon Abbett."

The arraignment of the Middlesex county ring, which followed, was very bitter. Miles Ross was called the "Mogul of New Brunswick." and he and his lieutenants were denounced as robbers and falsifiers. Father Connelly said that last spring an attempt was made to put a yoke on the necks of the liquor dealers of Perth Amboy. An effort to secure the appointment of the Excise Board by the County Court was unsuccessful, and it was to this that reference was made. The leaders whom Father Connelly denounced were charged with controlling the courts, and Robert Adrain received especial credit for being active in this particular. In conclusion the speaker said:

"Rebuke these men," said he, "and their evil doings, even if you have to vote the entire Republican ticket, as I shall do, to assert your honor, your manhood, and your independence."

Father Connelly has been a power in politics in this part of New Jersey for twenty years. He is believed to have been the cause of the defeat of the Democratic candidate for Mayor of the city last spring. Mayor E. R. Pierce was anxious for a reflection, but Connelly worked for and apparently accomplished his defeat, because, as Mayor, he had ridden at the head of the procession at the dedication of the new Polish church.

Dr. Hall preached with all his old-time vigor, His text was Psalms, cxt. 19. "The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom," The wisdom meant was not cunning, sharpness, or learning, he said. It was a knowledge of the fitness of things, a proper comprehension of God as the great creator, as the God of providence, and as the God of grace.

"During the last few months," he said. "I have had the opportunity to preach in three different places where I formerly preached in Ireland. I inquired how it went with this and that family and found as a general rule that those who had the fear of the Lord had succeeded, while the lives of those without this fear of the Lord largely wanting in social and commercial life, but in politics as well. The real radical cure is fear of the Lord on the part of the electors and those seeking to be elected. This is the beginning of wisdom."
